CONGRESS
OF THE UNITED STATES.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Tuesday January 11.

Mr. Griſwold moved that the houſe ſhould reſolve itſelf into a committee of the whole on the ſtate of the union, for the purpoſe of taking up his reſolution, laid ſome time ſince on the table, calling for papers relative to the ceſſion of Louiſiana.

Mr. Griſwold obſerved that the principal arguments againſt taking up this reſolution ſome day ſince was, that a ſubject with which it was connected was then before the houſe, which was of a confidential nature, on which it was proper firſt to act. On that ſubject the Houſe had come to a reſult, and the reſult had been made public. There was now therefore no weight in that argument. It now appeared that his reſolution was when offered perfectly correct, and did not in the leaſt interfere with the ſubject then before a ſecret committee.

It was agreed on all hands that the ſubject was important. Documents were neceſſary to a right underſtanding of it. It was important to know officially, whether the ceſſion were made, the time when made, and the conditions and ſtipulations under which it was made.—Theſe were all doubtleſs in the poſſeſſion of the Executive. For it was not poſſible that the Executive would neglect to demand from the governments of France and Spain an explanation of theſe circumſtances; and if refuſed, make a communication to that effect to the legiſlature.—As they were, therefore, not now embarraſſed by any ſubject before a ſecret committee he hoped his reſolution would be ſuffered to go to a committee of the whole, and be there decided upon.—He concluded by calling for the Yeas and Nays.

Mr. Dawſon oppoſed the going into committee; and ſtated that in caſe that motion ſhould be diſagreed to, he would move the poſtponement of the conſideration of the reſolution till ſome time in next month.

Mr. Mott declared himſelf againſt the reſolution; but in order to get clear of it he ſhould vote for going into a committee, that it might immediately be got rid of.

Mr. Dana ſaid the refuſal to go into a committee would be a virtual refuſal of information. The poſtponing the reſolution would be a milder mode than in negativing it, but it would be ſubſtantially the ſame. The enquiry therefore, was, whether it was proper to aſk for this information at this time. That it was ſufficiently important to aſk appeared from the recommendation of the Preſident.

On what principle, can it with propriety be refuſed? Were the information aſked of ſuch a nature as to be as well known by the members of the Houſe, as by the Executive, the arguments in favor of the requeſt would have leſs weight. But in this inſtance the Executive poſſeſſed the whole information. It was excluſively in the Executive cabinet, if any where. Will gentlemen aſſume it as an argument that the Executive knows nothing on the ſubject? Are we to ſuppoſe that it is mentioned in the meſſage merely as the news of the day; and that the Executive has not had vigilance enough to diſcover the circumſtances attending the ceſſion? It muſt be with the Executive. Can it be preſumed that the Executive is indiſpoſed to give the information. This is not admiſſable. Are the Houſe diſpoſed to act upon this ſubject without information? Neither was this admiſſable. For theſe reaſons, in his opinion, the reſolution ought to be agreed to.

Mr. Randolph was averſe to going into a committee of the whole houſe on the ſtate of the Union, if it were underſtood that the reſolution of the gentleman from Connecticut was to be taken up. It was not very material to him in what way the houſe ſignified their diſſent to the meaſure. But preferring that which was leaſt circuitous he hoped they would refuſe to take it up in committee. Much pains having been taken to impreſs a belief that the preſident had communicated to the houſe a fact of which he poſſeſſed no official information, Mr. R. begged the houſe to recollect that the tortured ingenuity of gentlemen had been unable fairly to infer the fact from the Executive communications; nor could it be implied from a refuſal to concur in the propoſed reſolution. His oppoſition to it grew out of the reſolution itſelf. It conveys the ſuſpicion that Spain has ceded Louiſiana to France indiſinitely.—Hereby giving to France ſome color of claim to the countries formerly comprized under that appellation; or that ſhe has made the ceſſion by limits incompatible with her engagements to us: and that in either caſe our right to the navigation of the Miſſiſſippi may have been impaired. For if you ſuppoſe in this transfer of her property that Spain has paid due regard to her ſtipulations with us, the reſolution ceaſes to have an object. Now ſir, wherefore caſt this imputation on Spain?—eſpecially at this criſis when, as I am informed from a reſpectable ſource, one of the firſt characters in the union is recently nominated miniſter to that court, for the purpoſe of adjuſting all differences on this ſubject.

I ſhould have ſuppoſed another reaſon would have deterred the gentleman from perſiſting in this call. That gentleman and his friends had recorded on the journals of this houſe their ſolemn determination, however ſenſibly they might feel the injuries inflicted on the rights and intereſts of theſe ſtates, to refuſe all co-operation in the ſupport of thoſe rights and intereſts ſo long as the direction of the government ſhould be retained by thoſe who now poſſeſs it. For after having expreſſed their diſapprobation of that clauſe in a reſolution lately adopted by the houſe to aſſert our rights of limits and of navigation through the Miſſiſſippi, objecting to no other part of it, they had, nevertheleſs, refuſed to give their aſſent to it becauſe of this objectionable paſſage.—There was a time, ſir, when ſuch conduct would have been denounced by a portion of this houſe as the eſſence of Jacobiniſm and diſorganization. Mr. R. concluded by ſaying that he thought it unwiſe at this time, in the very cradle of the negociation, to throw out inſinuations which would have a tendency to irritate or diſguſt the Spaniſh court.

Mr. Griſwold did not expect that the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. Randolph) in the face of the knowledge of every gentleman on the floor, who was in ſecret committee, in the face of the public Journal, would have made a repreſentation of proceedings, ſuch as the Houſe had juſt heard. Have we given our votes againſt theſe meaſures which the violated rights of the country require? Have we given them to that effect? He appealed to the Journal. It would there appear what had been done in ſecret committee; and that would contradict the miſrepreſentation of the gentleman.

Upon that reſolution, which the gentleman from Virginia had emphatically called his reſolution, ſeveral votes had been taken. One motion was made to expunge theſe words:

"And relying with perfect confidence on the vigilance and wiſdom of the Executive, they will wait the iſſue of ſuch meaſures as that department of the government ſhall have purſued for aſſerting the rights and vindicating the injuries of the United States."

This motion did not prevail. But, ſaid Mr. Griſwold, I voted for it for two reaſons; firſt, becauſe I could not expreſs a confidence which I did not feel; and ſecondly, becauſe I was not willing that we ſhould pledge ourſelves to that, which would leave every thing in the hands of the Executive, and prevent us from doing any thing. I thought that we ought to do ſomething; that we ſhould at leaſt prepare for an event which might ariſe that might require the whole energies of the government. I was, therefore not willing to pledge ourſelves to wait the iſſue of the Executive meaſures.

There was another vote on a part of the reſolution, in theſe words:

"Holding it to be their duty, at the ſame time, to expreſs their unalterable determination to maintain the boundaries, and the rights of navigation and commerce through the river Miſſiſſippi, as eſtabliſhed by exiſting treaties."

How did we vote on this part? Did we vote as the gentleman repreſents? Did we refuſe to pledge ourſelves to this? No—the vote was unanimous; and every gentleman ſo far ſtands pledged.

The only points on which we differed were as to the expreſſion of confidence in the executive, which we did not feel; and our pledging ourſelves not to take any legiſlative meaſures, when we thought we ought to take them. There was one deſcription of gentlemen, who had ſuch unlimitted confidence in the Executive, that they were diſpoſed to leave every thing to him, and who were ready to tie their own hands from all interference; there was another deſcription of gentlemen, who did not feel this confidence and were themſelves ready to do that which they thought proper. Now, with what face the gentleman can charge us with an indiſpoſition to do any thing I do not know. This is truly aſtoniſhing when the recollection of every gentleman muſt be freſh, and when the Journals will contradict him in his endeavours to throw ſuch unmerited aſperſions upon the characters of thoſe who voted with him (Mr. Griſwold.)

As to the objection that this reſolution was calculated to irritate the court of Spain, he did not underſtand it. What was there in it that could irritate either Spain or France? [Mr. Griſwold here read his reſolution.] Is there a ſingle word contained in it, calculated to irritate or impede that negociation which the gentleman from Virginia has told us is about to be commenced at this late period, when more than a year has elapſed ſince the ceſſion? Not a word. Indeed if any legiſlative meaſures ſhall be found to be neceſſary, this ſtep is calculated to accelerate the negociations. If the meaſures of the legiſlature exhibit a preparation for the moſt diſagreeable events, it will accelerate negociation.

This every man acquainted with human nature knows. But an appearance of weakneſs, and a perfect ſilence on the part of that department of government inveſted with the moſt important duties, will impede ſucceſsful negociation, & deprive the negociator of the moſt forcible arguments in his power to urge.

BOSTON, January 17.

MOROCCO——OFFICIAL.

Extract of a letter from Conſul Simpſon, to Conſul Gavino, dated Tangier, 27th September, 1802.

"I am happy to tell you, that ſome matters in diſcuſſion with this country, have already been ſo far explained, and miſconceptions on the part of this government done away, as to leave me no room to apprehend longer a neceſſity of having recourſe to America for inſtructions, as every matter is in the faireſt train of perfect accommodation, and I hope the gun carriages will come juſt in time to ſettle every thing, at leaſt for ſome years, until they think of ſomething elſe to aſk for."

NEW-YORK, Jan. 12.

Arrived yeſterday, the fine (late United States) ſhip Delaware, Smith, from St. Peterſburg, and 70 days from Elſineur. The Delaware has been out about 17 months. She went from Philadelphia to La Guira, thence to St. Sebaſtains; from this place ſhe proceeded to Bordeaux, and then to St. Peterſburg. She left at St. Peterſburg, the ſhip Charleſton, Wyer, for New-York, ready for ſea; and the brig ———, Hathaway, for Providence, alſo ready for ſea. Spoke Nov. 17, in lat. 44, 12, long. 22, 50, the brig Union, 26 days from Marblehead to Bilboa. Jan. 6, in lat. 39, in 25 fathoms water, a ſhip from Amſterdam for New-York, [this was the Mary, Crockat, already arrived.] Jan. 7, ſpoke a ſhip (ſuppoſed to be the John) 28 days from Ireland, via the Cape de Verds, bound to New-York. Jan. 9, at night, 6 miles W. S. W. of the Capes, in a gale, the Delaware loſt her beſt bower anchor in the act of heaving up, by the cable parting.

In the Delaware, came paſſengers, three of the crew of the ſhip George Waſhingington, Sawton, from Peterſburg for Providence, which ſhip was caſt away off Revel, in the Gulph of Finland—People, and part of the cargo ſaved.

Same day, the ſchooner Sally, Bume, in 11 days from Charleſton, for Philadelphia, but could not get up the Delaware.

Same day, the ſch'r Farmer's Delight, Brown, of Philadelphia, from St. Croix, bound to Philadelphia, but could not get up the Delaware on account of head winds. Left, ſchooner Good-Intent, Baker, of N York, juſt arrived from Madeira; brig Clariſſa, of Philadelphia, for Carolina; brig Eliza and Sarah, Whitehead, of do. brig Olive, Clinton, of N. Haven; ſch'r Induſtry, of Vienna, from St. Thomas; ſch'r Babridge, of Salem, to ſail next day for Edenton; brig ——, Denniſon, of N. Haven, and others. The brig Van Skab, from N. York, was to ſail next day for Oronoko. The brig Sarah of Philadelphia, ſailed 3 days before for St. Thomas. The ſch'r Maria, of Vienna, lately taken by a French frigate's boat, was about leaving St. Croix; ſhe was ſtill in poſſeſſion of the French, and was taken by them on ſuſpicion of her being engaged in the ſmuggling trade.

The ſch'r Ann, Gelder, of Philadelphia, in 18 days from Point Petre, Guadaloupe, with molaſſes. She was alſo deſtined for Philadelphia, put in here in diſtreſs, having loſt he main-boom, and the captain, mate, and part of the crew being ſick. We could get no other news from her, as ſhe is under quarantine.

January 13.

By the ſhip Alexander, Fitch, in 5 days from Charleſton, the Editor of the Mercantile Advertiſer has received a file of Charleſton papers to the 6th inſtant, inclusive. The arrival of the brig Sally, Leroux after a ſhort paſſage of 36 days from Guernſey, furniſhes the European intelligence in the preceding page.—Events which may have been recorded in the intermediate dates, between the 11th and 22d of November, could not be noticed by the Charleſton Editors, who had merely time to extract the King's Speech at the opening of the Britiſh Parliament. A London Paper of the 11th November ſtates that the differences between the Engliſh Government and that of France, on the ſubject of Malta, are finally adjuſted; and that the Emperor of Gemany had acquieſced in the new plan of indemnities brought forward by France and Ruſſia.

Lateſt Foreign Intelligence.

From London papers to the 27th November, received at Charleſton.

LONDON, November 11.

The Meduſa, from Gibraltar, fell in with our ſquadron which ſailed from hence on the 6th, off Carthagena, all well. Sir Richard Bickerton had received orders to remain in the Mediterranean with the whole of his fleet, after Malta was evacuated; a meaſure highly politic in the preſent ſituation of affairs, as without a naval force ſufficient to keep the Toulon fleet in check, the French might eaſily make themſelves maſters of both Malta and Egypt, the moment we have evacuated them, as we ſhould then have nothing to depend on but the good faith of Bonaparte.

November 26.

His Majeſty's ſpeech which was eagerly looked for, throws no new light on the intentions of government; it merely informs us that peace ſhall be preſerved, if poſſible; and if that be not poſſible, we ſhall go to war, The maintenance of continental alliances, & the balance of power in Europe, is the only point to which the ſpeech pledges government.

The debates in Parliament to which this ſtate paper gave riſe, have diſcovered the intentions of government, with regard to public affairs, and the ſtate and views of parties at home. By the debates, miniſters wiſh and hope for peace, but yet are concerned at the ſtrides of ambition daily making by France, though they do not deem it a ſufficient cauſe to juſtify our going to war alone and unſupported by any continental power. Mr. Fox and the old oppoſition, ſtrongly ſupport adminiſtration in theſe ſentiments; but are ſtrongly oppoſed by the Grenville party, and the friends of the late miniſter, who affirm, that without the reſtoration of their favorite (Mr. Pitt) to the head of affairs, neither peace nor war can ſave the country.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

November 23.

This day his Majeſty came to the Houſe of Peers, and being in his royal robes ſeated on the throne with the uſual ſolemnity, was pleaſed to make the following moſt gracious ſpeech:

"My Lords and Gentlemen,

"It is highly gratifying to me to reſort to your advice and aſſiſtance after the opportunity which has been recently afforded of collecting the ſenſe of my people.

"The internal proſperity of the country has realized our moſt ſanguine hopes. We have experienced the bounty of Divine Providence in the produce of an abundant harveſt; the ſtate of the manufactures, commerce and revenue of my United Kingdom is flouriſhing without example; and the loyalty and attachment which are manifeſted to my perſon and government afford the ſtrongeſt indications of the juſt ſenſe that is entertained of the numerous bleſſings enjoyed under our happy conſtitution.

"In my intercourſe with foreign powers, I have been actuated by a ſincere diſpoſition for the maintenance of peace; it is, nevertheleſs, impoſſible for me to loſe ſight of that eſtabliſhed and wiſe ſyſtem of policy by which the intereſts of other ſtates are connected with our own; and I cannot, therefore, be indifferent to any material change in their relative condition and ſtrength. My conduct will be invariably regulated by a due conſideration of the actual ſituation of Europe, and by watchful ſolicitude for the permanent welfare of my people. You will, I am perſuaded, agree with me in thinking that it is incumbent upon us to adopt thoſe means of ſecurity which are beſt calculated to afford the proſpect of preſerving to my ſubjects the bleſſings of peace.

"Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons,

"I have ordered the eſtimates for the enſuing year to be laid before you; and I rely on your zeal & liberality in providing for the various branches of the public ſervice, which it is a great ſatisfaction to me to think, may be fully accompliſhed without any conſiderable addition to the burthens of my people.

"My Lords and Gentlemen,

"I contemplate with the utmoſt ſatisfaction, the great and encreaſing benefits produced by that important meaſure which has united the intereſts and conſolidated the reſources of Great Britain and Ireland. The improvement and extenſion of theſe advantages will be objects of your unremitting care and attention. The trade and commerce of my ſubjects, ſo eſſential to the ſupport of public credit, and of our maritime ſtrength, will, I am perſuaded received from your every poſſible encouragement, and you will readily lend your aſſiſtance in affording, to mercantile tranſactions in every part of my United Kingdoms, all the felicity and accommodation that may be conſiſtent with the ſecurity of the public revenue.

"To uphold the honor of the country, to encourage its induſtry, to improve its reſources, and to maintain the true principles of the conſtitution in church and ſtate, are the great and leading duties which you are called upon to diſcharge. In the performance of them you may be aſſured of my uniform and cordial ſupport; it being my moſt earneſt wiſh to cultivate a perfect harmony and confidence between me and my Parliament, and to promote to the utmoſt the welfare of my faithful ſubjects, whoſe intereſts and happineſs I ſhall ever conſider as inſeperable from my own."

Alexandria Advertiſer.

MONDAY, JANUARY 17.

At an election held on Saturday laſt, for fifteen Directors of the Marine Inſurance Company of Alexandria, the following gentlemen were choſen.

William Herbert,
Joſeph Riddle,
William Hodgſon,
Jonah Thompſon,
Richard Conway,
John C. Vowell,
James H. Hooe,
Thomas Williams,
William Hartſhorne,
William Wilſon,
James Patton,
John Ramſay,
James Kennedy, jun.
Abram Hewes,
George Taylor.

Captain Haniſet, arrived at New-York, informs, that juſt before he ſailed, a Dutch frigate and cutter arrived there, to take poſſeſſion of the Iſland of Curracoa, and that the Engliſh troops were to evacuate that place on the 2d January. He further informs, that a large Dutch Merchantman, which was in company with the above veſſels, went aſhore on the northern part of the Iſland, and immediately bilged. Gen. Schultz, and the mate was unfortunately drowned. Col. Scott, commander of the Dutch troops, was alſo on board, and with great difficulty reached the ſhore, after being conſiderably hurt amongſt the rocks.

Extract of a letter from Gibraltar, dated on board the United States' frigate John Adams, Dec. 4, to a gentleman in Philadelphia.

"We arrived here the 30th November, to take in proviſions for commodore Morris, who is at Malta. We ſhall ſtop at Malaga, and go up in company with the Conſtellation. All our ſquadron except the Adams, Campbell, winter at Malta, and we all live in hopes, that by the arrival of ſpring, the Commodore will make an attack on Tripoli. Yeſterday a ſtore-ſhip arrived in 24 days from New-York."

BAHAMA ISLANDS.

By his Excellency JOHN HALKET, Eſq. Captain General & Governor in Chief, in and over the the ſaid Iſlands, and of ehe Garriſons there, or that may be ſent thither, Chancellor, Vice-Admiral and ordinary of the ſame.

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas it is judged expedient that the admiſſion of proviſions and lumber in foreign veſſels, ſhould for the preſent be allowed: I do therefore, by and with the advice of his majeſty's Honorable Council, iſſue this my proclamation, permitting the following articles to be imported into the ports of Naſſau, Exuma, Turks Iſland and Saint George, as well in foreign as in Britiſh bottoms, viz. Corn, all ſorts of Grain and Pulſe, Flour and Bread, Rice every ſpecies of Salted Proviſions, Cattle and Live Stock of all kinds, and all ſorts of lumber, until further notice.

Given under my hand and ſeal of the ſaid Iſlands, at Naſſau, New Providence, the ſeventeenth day of December, in the year of our Lord 1802 and in the forty third year of his Majeſty's reign.

J. HALKETT.

By his Excellency's Command,
ADAM CHRYSTIE, Secretary.

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES.

Houſe of Repreſentatives.

Wedneſday, January 12, 1803.

Mr. Moore made a report on the petition of ſundry inhabitants reſiding on French Broad Creek, declaring that the prayer of the petition could not be granted. Agreed to.

Mr. Greene moved a reſolution for the appointment of a committee to enquire into the expediency of repealing ſo much of the ordninance of the 13th July, 1787, for the government of the territory North Weſt of the Ohio, and of the act of Congreſs of the 7th of April, 1798, as provides for the eſtabliſhment of a court of juſtice and the appointment of judges by the government of the United States in the Miſſiſſippi territory.

Carried, and referred to the committee of the whole to morrow.

A meſſage was received from the Senate, returning the bill making appropriations for the military eſtabliſhment during the year 1803, with two amendments, making additional appropriations, the one of 2,000 dollars for maps, &c. and the other, 4,500 dollars for poſtage of letters to and from certain officers in the War Department.

Referred to a committee of the whole.

Mr. Davis preſented a petition from Abraham Stout, praying relief.

On the reference of this petition, a converſation took place, on the propriety and juſtice of making a proviſion for perſons wounded during the revolutionary war, notwithſtanding the interference of the ſtatute of limitations, this proviſion was warmly urged by Mr. Elmer, and ſupported by Meſſrs. Helmes and Claiborne.

It was finally agreed that the petition ſhould be referred to the committee of claims.

When Mr. Helms moved a reſolution for the appointment of a committee to enquire into the expediency of allowing penſions to perſons laboring under exiſting diſabilities from wounds received in the ſervice of the United States, and not heretofore provided for, to report by bill or otherwiſe.

Carried, and referred to a ſelect committee of five.

Mr. Varnum preſented to the houſe a map of Maſſachuſetts, in two parts, which he had been requeſted to preſent by the Secretary of ſtate of Maſſachuſetts, agreeably to a reſolution of the legiſlature of that ſtate.

Mr. Varnum further ſtated that an additional copy had been preſented for the uſe of the library of Congreſs, and another for the uſe of the Senate.

On motion of Mr. Dana, the Speaker was requeſted to acknowledge the receipt of the map.

The Speaker obſerved that, unleſs otherwiſe inſtructed, he ſhould direct the map to be ſet up in a conſpicuous part of the Chamber of the Houſe.

The houſe reſolved itſelf into a committee of the whole, on the report of the committee of ways and means on the petition of Hugh Alexander.

Mr. Varnum in the chair.

The report was favorable to the claim of the petitioner.

No objection having been made to the report, the committee roſe and reported the reſolution without amendment. The houſe immediately concurred, and ordered the committee of ways and means to bring in a bill.

The houſe then went into a committee of the whole on the report of the committee of commerce and manufactures on the petition of Henry Meſſonier. The committee, after ſome diſcuſſion, concurred in the report, which is favorable to the prayer of the petition, and roſe; whereupon the houſe immediately agreed to the report of the committee of the whole and ordered a bill to be brought in.

Mr. S. Smith called for the clearing the galleries on the ſubject yeſterday before the houſe; the galleries were accordingly cleared, and remained ſo for about ten minutes, when the houſe adjourned.

Thurſday, January 13.

Mr. S. Smith offered a reſolution inſtructing the committee of ways and means to enquire into the expediency of prolonging the period of payment of bonds given for duties by merchants of Portſmouth who may have been ſufferers by the late fire at that place.

Mr. Smith ſubmitted a letter from the Secretary of the Treaſury to him as chairman of the committee of commerce and manufactures, ſtating, that if the prolongation depended upon him, he ſhould be inclined to grant it—alſo incloſing a letter from the collector of the port of Portſmouth.

The reſolution was immediately taken up and agreed to.

Mr. Dennis reported a bill to incorporate an Inſurance Company in the City of Waſhington, which was twice read, and referred to a committee of the whole on Monday next.

Mr. Brent preſented a petition from the mayor and commonalty of Alexandria, ſtating that having incurred conſiderable expence, viz. 1017 dollars in carrying into effect the quarantine laws of Virginia, which, before the ceſſion of the diſtrict of Columbia was defrayed by Virginia, and praying to be reimburſed by Congreſs, and alſo for the paſſage by Congreſs of an adequate quarantine law. Referred to the committee of claims.

The Houſe went into a committee of the whole; Mr. Dawſon in the chair—on the amendments from the Senate to the bill making appropriations for the military eſtabliſhment for the year 1803; the amendment appropriating 2,000 dolls. for maps, &c. was agreed to.

On the other amendment, appropriating 4,500 dollars for the poſtage of letters, a converſation of conſiderable length took place, on the fit mode of making proviſion for the tranſmiſſion of letters by ſeveral ſubordinate officers in the war department. It was ultimately carried that the committee ſhould riſe. The committee accordingly roſe. The houſe refuſed their leave to ſit again, and referred the amendment to the committee of Ways and Means.

Mr. Randolph, from the committee of Ways and Means, reported a bill for the relief of Hugh Alexander and others, which was twice read and referred to a committee of the whole to-morrow.
